Unit Descriptions

Unit 1 – Early Canada and World War I

In this unit, students will start with getting an early sense of their own Canadian identity. They will be then be taken on a journey through World War I, a tragedy that resulted in an immense loss of life but also helped play a pivotal role in defining Canada's role on the world stage. Students will then get a glimpse of the domestic issues that Canadians faced at this time in our country's history.

Unit 2 – Between the Two Wars

This time in Canadian history is often noted as a time of great prosperity. Starting with Canada's signing the Treaty of Versailles and membership in the League of Nations, Canada established its own identity, not just a member of the British Commonwealth. Discussion shifts to seeing developments in Canada on a social, sporting, and artistic level. The chapter ends examining Canada's fall under the weight of the global financial crisis, the Great Depression.

Unit 3 – World War II

This discussion on World War II is approached with less optimism than the unit on World War I. Students are introduced to the infamous dictator Adolf Hitler and the horrible atrocities that accompanied World War II. Canada's role in the war were both up and down, and unfortunately, many of Canada's wartime policies left a black mark on Canadian history.

Unit 4 – Canada and its Relationships

In this unit, students will examine various key relationships that have changed throughout the history of this country. Canada will examine its long history and relationship with our southern neighbour, the United States of America and the Cold War which we fought alongside them for the better part of the 50 years after WWII. Students will also examine our domestic relationships that the government has had with the French, the First Nations people, and the many groups of Canadians who, over time, obtain the right to vote.

Unit 5 – What does it mean to be Canadian?

In this unit, students will look over some of the different aspects of Canada that we are best known for today. Looking at medicine, sports, entertainment, technology and peacekeeping, students will get a sense of the different aspects of being Canadian that we take great pride in. Lastly, students will look over some of the issues in today's Canada, and re-examine their understanding of their national identity.

Teaching/Learning Strategies

The course is delivered to students via Internet to computers set up at KIHS classrooms in the communities. Most communication between students and the teacher is done using the Internet connection with the teacher mentor assuming the role as liaison between the course instructor and the student.

The teaching of lessons incorporate the following list of instructional strategies:

- Reading,
- Structured discussion,
- Practical exercise,
- Brainstorming,
- Research project,
- Independent study,
- Interpretation.

Learning goals will be discussed at the beginning of each assignment and success criteria will be provided to students. The success criteria will be used to develop the assessment tools in this course, including rubrics, checklists, and exemplars.

Evaluation

The final grade will be determined as follows (Ontario Ministry of Education, 2010):

- Seventy per cent of the grade will be based on evaluation conducted throughout the course. This portion of the grade should reflect the student's most consistent level of achievement throughout the course, although special consideration should be given to more recent evidence of achievement.
- Thirty per cent of the grade will be based on a final evaluation administered at or towards the end of the course. This evaluation will be based on evidence from one or a combination of the following: an examination, a performance, an essay, and/or another method of evaluation suitable to the course content. The final evaluation allows the student an opportunity to demonstrate comprehensive achievement of the overall expectations for the course (p. 47).

Program Planning

This course is offered to Indigenous students living in isolated northern Ontario communities which do not have access to regular high school facilities, equipment, or teachers associated with secondary education. This course uses the internet for instruction, demonstration and research. It utilizes a student centered semi-virtual classroom which capitalizes on the strengths of internet program delivery to minimize the disadvantages of geographic remoteness.

Students are presented with instruction/activity via the internet. All lessons, assignments, questions and course material is presented in this manner, with approved print materials available as a student resources in each classroom. The student and instructor communicate via the internet, while a classroom mentor (a fully qualified teacher) assists students in completing tasks in a timely manner and provides tutoring as required. . Students may also receive support from various programs at KiHS, including the First Nation Student Success Program and the Special Education Program.

Indigenous and local content is used throughout the course to meet students' learning needs. Considerations are made to the learning preferences of the student population and lessons can be adjusted for individual students as required.
